

Adagio Health, Inc. Pittsburgh

Adagio Health, Inc. located in Downtown Pittsburgh, was in need of a facility upgrade. The first of these upgrades started on the executive floor of the building and included opening up the floor plan by combining small spaces into larger ones, installing new ceilings, doors, and flooring upgrades.

Several unique features that were designed specifically for this project are the decorative maple ceiling above the main entrance door, and the large maple framed picture window. This window allows an excellent view from the hallway to the main office space highlighted by the conference table.

Some of the challenges of this project were working through the material and equipment logistical issues, a tight downtown site, and, in addition, working an occupied space.

Jendoco's crew worked closely with the owner to ensure that we did not disrupt their work environment while completing the extensive renovations that were required.
